

Many patients receiving intravesical treatment for conditions such as interstitial cystitis/bladder pain syndrome and recurrent UTIs will have been used to receiving treatment within a hospital clinic. Aspire Pharma recognise that Urology clinics have seen some changes over the last few years, with many patients now self-administering their iAluRil treatment at home.

Working with NHS clinical specialists, Aspire have provided support in the form of nurse-led training videos in order to help patients effectively perform intermittent self-catheterisation safely, or to effectively use the iAluadapter® for catheter-free administration of iAluRil®. There are separate videos for male and female self-administration, and they are aimed at supporting and guiding patients through the process, step by step.

N.B. iAluRil® may only be self-administered following appropriate training, which these videos provide.

Hints & tips and diagrams are available on the website, and can be printed. We also provide a telephone helpline, with a registered nurse available for questions about iAluRil® technique, further support and guidance.

Aspire have made iAluRil® available to be directly purchased, without the need for a prescription, via the iAluRil® website, and have collaborated with Select Homecare to enable a community prescription of iAluRil® to be delivered directly to the patient's home.
